

Changing Perspective means the way you change your opinion of ~~something, someone~~ something or someone. In the novel "Looking for Alibrandi" Josie (a girl getting ready for the HSC) changes her perspective of her Nona (Grandmother in Italian) when she finds out about her past. She also changes her perspective of Poisin Ivy (a girl at an upper class school) when ~~the~~ she hears of John Bartons Suicide.

Another good example of changing perspective is in the poem Sky-High it is about an old lady humming washing on the line and having flash backs of when she was a young girl who once played on the clothes line she remembers about the boys next door and the trees in the yard. You don't find out that it is an old lady remembering this until the end paragraph where she says "Its an older more age warped washing line now. She is now creating a semaphore secrete now.

In the movie "Shrek" Shrek is sent out to find a princess and bring her back for the evil Lord Farquaad. At this point ~~in~~ the movie ~~no~~ <sup>every one</sup> except a donkey is scared of Shrek. When he finds ~~the~~ the princess he falls in love. When he returns her to Lord Farquaad he realises his mistake and stops the wedding when they get married every one cheers and now every one except Lord Farquaad are friends with Shrek.
