

The texts Brave New World by Aldous Huxley and Blade Runner - Directors Cut are set in the future and both give us a bleak image of what our future might turn out like if industry and technology take over our world.

In A Brave New World we see a future in which people are created in labs to perform certain tasks. An Alpha would be smarter, more attractive and stronger than an epsilon. In this future ~~the~~ the only nature we see is in "reserves" where natives are kept, away from society.
