Section I (continued)

Question 3 (10 marks)

Assess how useful Sources C and D would be for an historian studying the Allies' approaches to Germany at the Paris Peace Conference.

In your answer, consider the perspectives provided by the two sources, and their reliability.

As a historian reading sources C and D it does give a fair bit of information to be studying. Source C individually explains the infantary power of legitimacy. They wish not to fight with arms or hostile arrangements or trade if she is willing to associate, but to engage in peace-loving and world justifications. In source D it is arguing the same subject with source C, talking about how they want peace justification brought to the world and no hard or should I say no harsh accusations should be made about Germany, to stabilise their powerful motions.

If I were to be a historian I would rely on the outcomes of these two sources because it changes your perspective on Germany and makes you actually wonder what anti-war socialism would have really been like in those days from war starting in 1918, for world war 1 and for it to end for world war 2 in 1979.

would everyone of gotten along with each other.
