The creation of supportive environment is used to manage the health of Australia in many ways.

Building a supportive environment helps us an individual make the right decision in the bad habits that we do.

It educates us the consequences that we could face if we happen to make that decision.

The supportive environment also helps smoke addicts get into rehabilitation clinics to quit smoking.

The society also plays a part of the supportive environment by putting ideas together making the society in which we live in a better and safer environment.

We as an individual play a part of the supportive environment if we contributed in our thoughts and give up our bad habits in the environment will be easier to maintain.
