a) Islam is a widespread belief system and religion. Its history is extremely long, fixed, and acknowledged through the Qur'an. The Qur'an states the basic values, beliefs, rules, and ethics of Islam. It is composed of the words from Allah himself which were told to Muhammad (a prophet) by angels. Allah is the God of Islam, the maker of humanity. He may acknowledge one's sins and send one to heaven or hell. Islam has five fundamental cores demonstrated through the 5 pillars of prayer, fasting, charity, the hajj, and the declaration of Islam. Muslims people, since the beginning, have followed the religion through the written guidance of the Hadith, written by prophets.

b) Globalisation has a large effect on Islam in the past and presently. Globalisation impacts the Islamic faith through the expansion of technology which in the Islamic belief system (takmir) changed the hajj (the pilgrimage to Mecca) is currently easier for older Muslims people as moving pathways have been constructed, and through Globalisation fast food outlets providing Halal meat are present at this sacred place. Globalisation has also allowed Islam to spread with a larger percentage of The world's population adopting Islam as a faith. The introduction of Western values into the Islamic belief systems follows daily life that affects the nature of Islam. Through the industrialisation that comes with globalisation, the access of this belief system has become much easier and globally Islam is being adopted as Muslim people expose themselves to the media and internet. Technology advancements such as the electronic reading devices also change the value of the textual of the sacred text, the Koran, as individual Muslims can now read Allah's sacred words electronically.

Global values of equality of the sexes have also impacted on the nature of this belief system as conflict has arisen due to the sexist interpretations of the Koran that many non-Muslims believe all Islamic people adopt.
