Buddhists Fost to simply" The above quotation epitomizes the influence of Buddhism on individuals a the Buddhist community. As expressed Through the four Noble treths, attatchment is the source of suffering in one's life, and only through the observation of the 8 to the path, encompassing all of the key ellical teachings of concepts of Buddliss in one and this settering. Indeed the statement above, illustrates the Buddhist way of life. The bor Noble Theres are central to Buddhism, and directly links to the quotation. "Attatehment" in Buddhism didtes prohibits the adherent from fulfillings one's goal in breaking the cycle of Janusava, or relainth. Therefore Buddhists are encouraged to retrain from including in materialistic or superficial pleasures of the modern world, to the point where it will prevent one from adhering to the teaching of the Buddah. So one can see how the quotation & -"Buddhists dust go simply" - ties in with the concept, and message behind the four Nobbe Truthes, as the Four Noble Touths ensurages the individual to indulge themself in a "simple" manner, attending to the importance to achieving inner peace or peace of hird, rather than indulging themselves in external pleasures. To achieve this though, one must observe, in particular the 4th noise treth, the 8 fold path. An unknown source once said - "A simple like means a happy soul, and a happy soul equales to peace of Mind " - Though Buddhism redects the idea of a soul, the quotation is Still relevant tourands the statement mentioned previously. It also relates to the concept of the 8 Fold path Substitute "Soul" for conscience; and the epitony of the 8 fold path is revealed. To achieve the 8 fold party, the adherent rust conform to all the had amental feachings of Buddhism achieving, along the way, one stage after another of the 8 fold path. While this confirmitty does recquires the individual to undertake many practices to achieve a Right Mindfulness" or "Right Speech", it recquires Just as much abstaining from objects that can lead to one indulging in the 3 poisons of Jealoury Anger a host for the inclividual to avoid such actions be must adhere to denot precticing of the 5 precepts, which in many ways form a beneprint for the inclividuals viguleous like. For the individual, the four Noble trutus detail wong with lumanity and the seeds to be done and the see problems. The precepts show Buddhists what they need to do a not do to live a Rightear, "timple" life. As with the Four Noble Truths, the & precepts econo the statement - "Boddhists Lat go simply" - through it's direction of was its adherents. & Stated above, while the 8 told path is the Objectives the I precepts are the directives to achieving them. Adherents must observe such things as non-violence toward living waters, theft, lying, substance alese a Sexual misconduct. In short it employes the adherent to Show respect and cave for others, and respect a care for self. The gootation - & "Buddlish Just go simply" - speaks volumes in relations to the practice of the four Noble truths, adherence to the Precepts, and avoidance of 466 harmful ireluldgenes, as Shown through the 3 poisons. The quotation illustrates the impact that Buddlisus has on it's adherents as they are encouraged, through priectices like the ones Forementioned, to avoid superficial attatalment, and focus on attaining peace of mind a creating peace in others
