

Qn 1

a) I desire, senators, not to seem easy-going in a time of such great danger for the state, but now I condemn myself for my inaction and negligence.

There is in Italy a camp against the Roman people, stationed in Etruria, and the number of enemies there grows daily, but the <sup>commander</sup> ~~leader~~ of the camp and the leader of the enemies ~~is~~ you can actually see inside the walls and even in the senate, plotting every day some internal destruction for the state.

b) But if this one man is removed from this ~~is~~ so great number of criminals, we will seem to have been relieved from care and fear for some brief time, but danger will remain ~~and~~ and will be ~~enclosed in the~~ deeply enclosed in the veins and vitals of the state.

Just as often, men sick with illness, when they are tossed about by a feverish heat, if they drink cold water, they seem to ~~to~~ be relieved, then they are afflicted much more seriously and noisily, ~~thus~~ thus this sickness, which is in the state, by the punishment of that man, will grow much more serious. As I have often said, separate yourself from good men, gather all of your men in one place, finally, as I have often said, let the walls separate you from us.
