

a) the hope of all the Greeks and the beginning of a fateful war always stood with the help of Pallas. For the fateful image of Palladium was avenged by Bellus, son of Tydus and wicked inventor of crimes, Ulysses, ~~in the form~~ by murder in the temple of the most greatest citadel of guardianship, who corrupted the sacred effigy of the virgin and blooded goddess with their ~~evil~~ hands and touched the temples of the goddess.

b) The horror of minds is everywhere, in the same way silence itself is life. Men, the horse, if perhaps on foot, if perhaps it had been lifted up, I refer you: The Lyones Greeks are unshy and were holding all the buildings. They set on fire the highest building and wanted to ~~spare~~ spare it, the flames were out of the top, the fury of the fire to our ears. I proceeded and I reversed the seat of Priam and the warden: and I ~~new~~ ~~leave~~ leave
