

4a) All the hope of the Greeks and belief in this war depended on the ~~hope~~ help of Pallas. But from that time when the godless ~~Foetus~~ son of Tydides and that inventor of wickedness, Ulysses, dared take the sacred object from the temple <sup>of Pallas</sup>, with the guards of the Citadel <sup>on high</sup> slain, they dared despoil the sacred effige and chaplets of the maiden goddess with their hands, ...

~~At my spirit was horrified, and even the very silence~~

f 6) All my spirit was horrified, and the very silence terrified me.

To my home, if only by chance, if only she had returned, I made my way: the greeks were there and had taken possession of the whole building.

Now, <sup>huge</sup> fire from high ravage around; Flames erupted, moving through all with the wind.

I proceeded and returned to the citadel and place of Priam: and now ~~in~~ the colonades of the sacred sanctuary of Jupiter <sup>was</sup> ~~they~~ held by Phoenix and dire Ulysses as they watched over <sup>the</sup> ~~the~~ destruction.

~~spoils~~ ~~These~~ spoils of the Trojans they grabbed from the flames, the tables of the gods and the solid gold bowls and the captive radiment. Boys and ~~women~~ Mothers stood trembling in long lines around.
