

Start here. Section III question 23

A) The major government agency to do with ensuring that the automotive industry complies with environmental protection, regulations and guidelines is the EPA. Their role is to ~~check~~ check work shops for how they dispose of harmful chemicals and substances and to enforce the laws relating to it.

The police also are a government agency that should ensure that work shops are fulfilling what is required of the workshops in relation to these laws involving environmental protection.